Why Bunded Fuel Tanks?

Current legislation makes it illegal to store or transport fuels without an inner bunded tank. This is to prevent pollution caused by the leakage of damaging fuels and phosphates. BEWARE it is illegal to store fuel in tanks that do not carry UN approval.

Why Jubaili Bros Bunded Fuel Tanks?

Lap-joint welded seams for extra strength and to ensure lasting high quality. Removable outer lid and inner tank for maintenance and inspection. Tanks are fabricated from high grade mild steel. Walls and lid 3mm thick, base and forklift pockets 4mm thick.

All tanks have three feed and returns as standard for multiple generator running options. All pumps/connections/hoses are

How Bunded Tanks Work

Jubaili Bros Bunded tanks are fabricated from high grade mild steel. An inner tank contains the initial volume of fuel.

In the unlikely event that this tank develops a leak the outer tank will prevent the fuel from escaping into the environment. The bunded tank has a capacity of 110% of volume.

Jubaili Bros bunded tanks are designed with an easy removable steel inner tank for maintenance and inspection.

Quality Standards

Bunded tank range has been designed, built and tested to ADR and UN requirements and comply with Pollution Protection Guidelines (PPG2/ PPG26) housed and can be safely locked within the bund, allowing the tank to be secure while in use. Jubaili Bros bunded metal tanks can be stacked three high empty and two high full to maximise storage space.

These tanks meet strict quality standards, are PPG2/ PPG26 compliant and UN approved.
